Amkai Appoints New Chief Executive Officer

Waterbury, CT --- October 14, 2009 --- Amkai announced today the appointment of Joe Macies as its new Chief Executive Officer. Mr. Macies comes to Amkai with over 20 years of experience in sales and service for the software industry, and brings to the company valuable expertise as Amkai enters a significant new phase of growth and market expansion. Macies had a successful career as a partner with two major national consulting firms, Accenture and Unisys, including leadership roles in the health care practices of those firms. He has also held top leadership positions at small and large information technology and software companies.

Amkai's current CEO, Peter Sereny, M.D. will assume a new role as Founder, Chief Technology Officer, and Chief Medical Officer of the company. He will continue to guide the company's product development efforts.

"With the releases of AmkaiOffice 3.0 and AmkaiCharts 1.9, Amkai can now offer the ASC industry true next-generation software," said Dr. Sereny. "Attracting someone of Joe's qualifications is a testimony to the superior quality of the Amkai product offerings, and the opportunity for their tremendous success."

"With the exciting recent product launches and the appointment of Joe as CEO, Amkai is poised to become the market leader in providing electronic medical record and practice management software to the ASC industry," said Trygve Mikkelsen, Chairman of Amkai. "The investor group behind Amkai is extremely excited about the recent events and the opportunity for accelerating revenue growth," added Bob Dahl, an investor in, and Director of Amkai.

Amkai has nearly 100 installations in ambulatory surgery centers, surgical hospitals, and surgical practices. Amkai's administrative and clinical software suite has been developed and enhanced with significant feedback from customer development partners and reflects many features and functions long requested by the industry and lacking in legacy software in use today.

About Amkai
